Human Subjects
Engineers who work with human subjects as research participants must adhere to appropriate ethical standards, as set out by their Institutional Review Board. In this module, students will be introduced to the process and procedure of the writing and assessing of IRB proposals in order to prepare them for taking part in the process themselves.